The Cobra Ferrari Wars

By Jonny Lieberman
April 22, 2006

In the mid-fifties, Carroll Shelby started tearing-up his local racing circuits. Within a few years, the young driver dominated every major road race in the United States: Sebring, Daytona and more. When Sir David Brown caught wind of Shelby's prowess, he figured that the good-looking Texan's charisma would help sell Brown's hand-made British supercars stateside. Brown whisked Shelby off to Europe to drive for his fledgling Aston Martin racing team. In 1959, Shelby drove a DBR1/300 to victory at Le Mans. More importantly, Aston beat Ferrari and Shelby met Enzo. A rivalry was born.

After his Le Mans win, Shelby revealed that he had a hereditary heart condition and shockingly retired from racing. Back in the States, he tried his hand selling tires and establishing a performance racing school. But in his heart of hearts, Carroll wanted to return to Europe with an American car and beat the Hell out of Enzo Ferrari's mob. He even had a plan: stuff a muscular American V8 into a nimble British roadster. The long tall Texan envisioned a hairy-chested mule clobbering Enzo's prancing thoroughbreds.

Luckily, Ford was getting ass whooped both on the track (and in the showroom) by Chevrolet and the Corvette. The Blue Oval needed a halo vehicle. The company agreed to give the famous race car driver a new, lightweight all-aluminum V8, originally designed to power Canadian pickup trucks. Shelby turned to A.C. Cars in Britain for the frame and chassis. The Cobra was born. Or, more precisely, still-born. The first Cobra wasn't slow, but the mechanicals were garbage; the axle snapped during the car's first race and the engine wasn't nearly powerful enough to take on Maranello.

Enter a bunch of young, square-jawed Santa Monica hot rodders. A complete teardown, redesign and engine implant commenced. The resulting car is generally acknowledged to be the fastest (and coolest) muscle car of all time. The Cobra was so accelerative that Carroll would stick a $100 bill on the dash. If potential customers could grab it before the Cobra hit 100 mph, they could keep it. They couldn't. The 289 Cobra could do 0-100-0 in 15 seconds flat. The 427, in less than 13- which still counts as absurdly, violently fast more than 40 years later.

That Cobra's extreme performance and relatively nimble handling helped Shelby's team dominate practically every American race during the 1963 season. With high hopes and a quick car, they headed for Europe to do battle in Enzo's backyard- only to be crushed by Ferrari at Le Mans. On the three-mile Mulsanne Straight, the convertible Cobras -- with hard tops bolted on -- topped-out at 150mph. The Ferraris went 180. If Carroll Shelby was going to show Enzo what-for, he needed a proper coupe.

In Spirit Level Films "The Cobra/Ferrari Wars," documentary filmmaker Richard Symons offers a riveting account of the simmering rivalry between the American chicken farmer's motley gang of West Coast thrill-seekers, and Europe's blue-blooded racers. Interlacing vintage racing footage and latter day interviews with most of the key players, the film chronicles a seminal moment in American automotive history: the development of Carroll Shelby's Daytona Coupe. It's a classic story of American blood and guts.

Shelby recalls how he tasked a 23-year-old engineer named Pete Brock with designing the Coupe's body. Brock started with the windscreen, holding it in place with duct tape and wood. He then built the car's shell around it and the driver. Everyone agreed that the resulting Coupe was funny-looking— in a not-so-funny-kinda way. Brock assured them it would work. Or rather, fly. Even so, Shelby brought in an aerodynamics specialist who took one look and balked. Faced with a looming deadline and no Plan B, Carroll decided to trust his unknown engineer.

With Bob Bondurant and Dan Gurney behind the wheel, the Shelby Daytona Coupe hit an astonishing 196 mph on the Mulsanne Straight, and earned Shelby's band of brothers a first place finish in the GT class at the 1964 Le Mans. On his own terms, in his own way, the lanky Texan had beaten the imperious Italian. And then he did it again, in '65. And again, helping Hank Ford II's boys build the GT40 to punish Enzo for a last-minute walkout on a Blue Oval buyout. Four straight years of GT40 dominance in LeMans helped seal Carroll's reputation for all time.

Shelby's victory is all the more poignant when compared to today's motorsports; complete with computer-aided design, manufacture and telemetry; PR flacks, chefs and personal fitness trainers. Back in Shelby's day, victory was achieved by personal determination, imagination and grit. While these characteristics will always be vital ingredients in motor racing, it's hard to imagine a time when they seemed so pure, so unadulterated by the cold-blooded demands of big business. Symon's film captures the last time a bunch of buddies got together in a small garage to take on the world's best, and won.

Not Ranked

I also ordered online direct from Spirit Level Film (spiritlevelfilm.com) on January 20th at 9 pm their time and the DVD set arrived in my mailbox yesterday, the 27th.

The cost was the same as the above 17.72 (pounds) delivered (that is $25.34).

I have only had a few minutes to skim a bit of the first of the two disks.

Product Description

Author: Spiritlevelfilm Binding: Slipcased/Boxed Published: 2008 Ten years in the making, this fast-paced, sixties-style, split screen epic with an amazing soundtrack tells the extraordinary story of how Carroll

Shelby, together with a bunch of Southern Californian hot-rodders took on the might of Enzo Ferrari and his GTO in the mid 60s. Aside from original interviews from all the participants there's wonderful archive footage alongside some beautiful, newly filmed reconstructions with the original cars (Ferrari GTO, 250 SWB, Cobras and Daytona Coupe) on the track. A must for Cobra and Ferrari fans alike. "I spent a whole lot of time with Richard on this and he's really nailed it. Got all the right people, from Dan Gurney to Lee Iacocca. It's a wonderful, wonderful story and I've never seen anybody tell it better. I'm very proud to have been part of it." - Carroll Shelby

The Snake and the Stallion DVD

'The Snake and the Stallion' vividly documents the legendary rivalry between Texas chicken farmer turned American sporting hero Carroll Shelby, and the Italian automotive aristocrat Enzo Ferrari. First broadcast in 2002 by the BBC as 'The Cobra Ferrari Wars' to great critical acclaim, now retitled and remastered, 'The Snake and the Stallion' is being released as a collectors' edition double DVD. Ten years in the making, the documentary tells the remarkable story of Shelby's mission to "nail Ferrari's ass", resulting in the fearsome Cobra – possibly the most revered sports-car of all time. The double DVD set includes the full broadcast film, picture galleries, previously unseen footage, exclusive never-before seen interviews, and 6 hours of un-cut interviews with Shelby, giving a unique insight into the man himself. With its fast-pace, 60's soundtrack and effortless split-screen cool, this is a classic film vividly portraying the danger and excitement of a bygone era in motor sports history. 59 Minute film, plus extras: 2-Disc Set.

Release

The Snake & The Stallion aired on the BBC on Monday 17 June 2002, and was subsequently released on DVD. A remastered collector's edition of the film was released on DVD in 2008.

Synopsis

Richard Symons's documentary recounts the origins and rise to racing history of the AC Cobra, the car conceived by Carroll Shelby. The film details the history of the Cobra and Carroll Shelby's racing career, from humble beginnings to the 1959 victory at the Le Mans 24 hours, with Roy Salvadori at the wheel of the Cobra. The story goes on to explain Shelby's motivation to take on the might of Ferrari, with the help of Ford, and AC of England (who were then manufacturing invalid carriages), and why Carroll Shelby had to retire from racing.

Carroll Shelby was closely involved in the making of the documentary, "I spent a whole lot of time with Richard on this and he's really nailed it. Got all the right people, from Dan Gurney to Lee Iacocca. It's a wonderful story and I've never seen anybody tell it better. I'm very proud to

The Snake & the Stallion | How Carroll Shelby Kicked Ferrari's...

2009 May 11

tags: Carroll Shelby, Ford, Shelby Cobra
by JP

Carroll Shelby poses with his new 1964 production Cobra and his new Cobra race car-- Venice, California. "It's a massive motor in a tiny, lightweight car." --Shelby explaining in a nutshell, the secret to the Cobra's performance.

When Carroll Shelby decided to leave auto racing in 1960 due to a hereditary and life-threatening heart condition— he never looked back. Shelby dominated the racing circuit in the 50s, and wasn't done yet. Knowing that racing was longer an option, he fixed his squinty gaze at becoming a legend under the hood, as well as behind the wheel. Shelby was going to build his own cars, and made it his personal mission to knock Enzo Ferrari off his high horse— who's imperious, dictator style flat-out rubbed the tough Texan the wrong way. Ford knew they would also benefit greatly from an alliance with Shelby, as they were regularly getting their clock cleaned on the racetrack, and had no answer for Chevrolet's Corvette in the showroom wars either. Ford soon became part of the rivalry with Enzo, as two unsuccessful buyout attempts of Ferrari during the 60s dealt a humiliating blow to Henry Ford II, and the only place left to settle it was on the racetrack.

Carroll Shelby is shown below with the three Cobra roadsters that would win the 1963 USRRC Manufacturer's Championship. Venice, California, 1963.

The AC Cobra started out as a Ford small block 260 cubic inch V-8 (later 289) wrapped in a tight & light handbuilt British sportscar. It quickly morphed into a beast with a 7.0L 427 aluminum block under the hood, creating an incredible power-to-weight ratio that was just plain sick. Some silly fans actually prefer the earlier, more dainty Cobras-- feeling that the flared bodies, fat tires and aggressive stance of the later 427's comes across visually as too brutish and crass. Well sorry folks, I'm all about the 427 Cobra. An AC Cobra coupe's top speed was clocked at 185 mph on the M1 raceway back in 1964-- an impressive feat for sure, and years before the super-exotics.

The original Shelby Cobra was far from perfect—lets just say there were issues with stuffing an engine that massive in a chassis so small. So four Santa Monica hot-rodders tore the cars apart and rebuilt them to withstand the strain and demands from the ground up— all under the watchful eye of Shelby in his own workshop. Ford, Shelby and his team of craftsmen succeeded in creating a car that became all at once— the most loved, feared and copied sportscar in all of American auto history.

Shelby looks on as his crack squad of hot-rodders obsess over every detail as one of the first Cobras is prepped at the first Dean Moon Shop-- Santa Fe Springs, California in February of 1962.

A fleet of Shelby Cobra coupes being assembled and prepped.

4.33

"I'm not going to take this defeatist attitude and listen to all this crap any more from all these people who have nothing except doomsday to predict." --Carroll Shelby

"Next year, Ferrari's ass is mine!" --Carroll Shelby after losing to Ferrari in '64, and in '65 it would be just as Shelby predicted. Don't mess with Texas, baby.

Carroll Shelby at the wheel of a new Cobra production car-- Venice, California, 1963. He loved to stick $100 bills to the inside of the windscreen and challenge the potential customer, sitting in the passenger seat, to grab the bill before the Cobra hit 100 mph.

Many thanks to my friends at Vulcan Motor Club for allowing the wife and I to celebrate Mother's Day behind the wheel of the mother of all American muscle cars– the Shelby Cobra. I'll tell ya, working with these great guys has some serious upside– we had a great day, and you've really spoiled me.

a 13 year old Dana thought it perfectly reasonable for her dad to mortgage the house for the $300k or so it might have taken to get a Cobra at that time. I like the cut of her jib.

Great post/photos and story. Carrol Shelby was just on the Speed Channel about a month ago – as one of his cars was being auctioned at the Barret Jackson Auto Auction in Palm Beach, FL. He looked pretty good.

Without doubt the greatest of American sports cars. I've got a signed Daytona Cobra Coupe model sitting on my desk. Shelby will sign anything.

Great post.

If I could go back in time I'd do a lot of things, ahem, but one would be to give my then-21 year old father $7000 so he could buy that 427 Shelby Cobra a fellow sailor was selling.

It's almost a let down when I see what I think is an original Shelby Cobra only to read the plates: "fake" or "repli" or "my orig".

I've seen one authentic in the past 10 years. I think.

If you have the spare coin for the real deal, there is one coming for auction this Friday.

$6m, give or take. A rounding error in certain bank accounts, I suppose.

Product Description

Author: Spiritlevelfilm Binding: Slipcased/Boxed Published: 2008 Ten years in the making, this fast-paced, sixties-style, split screen epic with an amazing soundtrack tells the extraordinary story of how Carroll Shelby, together with a bunch of Southern Californian hot-rodders took on the might of Enzo Ferrari and his GTO in the mid 60s. Aside from original interviews from all the participants there's wonderful archive footage alongside some beautiful, newly filmed reconstructions with the original cars (Ferrari GTO, 250 SWB, Cobras and Daytona Coupe) on the track. A must for Cobra and Ferrari fans alike. "I spent a whole lot of time with Richard on this and he's really nailed it. Got all the right people, from Dan Gurney to Lee Iacocca. It's a wonderful, wonderful story and I've never seen anybody tell it better. I'm very proud to have been part of it." - Carroll Shelby
